- 83B. 1. Conversation.
2. Story.

Recorded by Helen Creighton.

August 29, 1943.

At the informant's home, South-East Passage, Nova Scotia.

2. This is a story called Jack the Serving Man. It is a particularly good traditional tale, and Mr. Hartlan was in good form when he told it.

Informant; Enos Hartlan, South-East Passage; aged 81; labourer.

Folklore of Lunenburg County p. 54

84A.

Recorded by Helen Creighton.

August 29, 1943.

At the singer's home, Eastern Passage, Nova Scotia.

Stories of ghosts, witches and treasure.

Informant; Enos Hartlan, ~~Rasternx~~ South East Passage, aged 81; labourer.

These should be good stories told by an interesting personality brought up to believe them from hearing them many times from his father and German grandfather.

84B.

The same, continued from 84A.

When I arrived and found that Mr. Hartlan had forgotten most of his songs I was not as sorry as I might have been because there were still his stories to record. He thought he had forgotten them too, but with a little gentle prodding and Mrs Finn to act as audience, they soon came back to him.

85A. The Cruel Mother, Mrs. Duncan's version.

Recorded by Helen Creighton.

August 28, 1943.

At my home, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

Ballad.

Singer; Nina Bartley Finn, wife of the Federal Deputy Minister of Fisheries, Ottawa; aged 31.

There was a lady came from York
All e lone and a-loney.

85B. Margaret and John., or The Grey Cock.

Recorded by Helen Creighton.

August 28, 1943.

At the singer's home, Chezzetcook, Nova Scotia.

Ballad; Dennis Smith's version.

As I rode out one evening the moon it shined clearly
And I heard a fair damsel complain.

Singer; Nina Bartley Finn, wife of the Federal Deputy Minister of Fisheries, Ottawa; aged 31.

+ SMS p. 83

86A. Micmac.

Recorded by Helen Creighton.

April 30, 1944.

At the Indian Reserve, Shubenacadie.

Informant; William Paul; aged 87; chief for 35 yrs; now retired as a chief but still an active woodsman; often represents the Indians in Ottawa.

This is the story of his life in English, repeated in Micmac. The three other old Indians in the room greeted his story with nods of approval.

These words probably in Bluebird Magic under Micmac.
