INTRODUCTION

The diaries of four Nova Scotians for the years 1807-11, 1813, 1815-16 and 1823-24 are printed in this bulletin. They were kept in Almanacks or Nova-Scotia Calendars by two Halifax merchants, a distinguished civil servant in the provincial capital and a clergyman of an agricultural community. Together they provide interesting kaleidoscopic views of various phases of life in both town and country in Nova Scotia early in the nineteenth century.

Internal evidence points to John Liddell, a Halifax merchant, militia officer and magistrate, as being the diarist for the years 1807, 1810-11 and 1813. Of Scottish ancestry, he was a partner first of Andrew Liddell, who was a native of Berwick, Scotland, in the firm of Andrew and John Liddell, and later in that of John Liddell and Company. He was commissioned as Second Lieutenant in the Halifax Militia on July 5, 1796. After joining the North British Society of Halifax in 1802, he became President of it in 1810. For many years he was a Justice of the Peace and Chief Police Magistrate in Halifax. He married Harriet Cleaveland on June 26, 1804, and they had four sons and nine daughters. His death occurred, at the age of 79, in New Glasgow, N. S., at the residence of his daughter, on April 6, 1856.

Rev. John Wiswall, a Loyalist clergyman in Wilmot, wrote the diaries for the years 1808 and 1809. He was the son of Peleg and Elizabeth (Rogers) Wiswall of Boston, where he was born on April 3, 1731, and was graduated at Harvard College in 1749, the third of his line, including his father, to be educated there. After teaching school for about five years, he was a Congregationalist clergyman for ten years before conforming to the Church of England in 1764. As discontent mounted on the eve of the American Revolutionary War, he became apprehensive about the safety of the Church of England in the American colonies. For doing what he regarded as his duty as a Minister of that Church and a servant of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, he found no safety from the storm. On May 9, 1775, he was seized by the revolutionists and taken before their committee. Yielding to circumstances, he escaped in a ship of the Royal Navy and went to Boston. His house, his furniture and his library were confiscated, and still greater misfortune was to be his lot. Racked by anxiety and fatigued in both mind and body, his wife Mercy, daughter of Judge Minot, and her only daughter fell sick and died a few days after their arrival at Boston in July. For several months, Rev. Mr. Wiswall was chaplain of the 63rd Regiment in Boston. Then he went to England and thereafter served as a chaplain in the Navy, mainly in ships in American and West Indian waters, until 1781. He was in Oxford, England, from 1781 to 1783, when he was appointed missionary for Cornwallis, Horton and Wilmot, in Nova Scotia. In 1784 he married Margaret, widow of John Hutchinson, of New Jersey. For some time Rev. Mr. Wiswall resided at Cornwallis; but after Wilmot and the western part of Aylesford were made into a new mission, he removed to Wilmot in 1789, and there he remained until his death on December 2, 1812.

James Boutineau Francklin, eldest son of Hon. Michael and Susannah (Boutineau) Francklin and Clerk of the Assembly of Nova Scotia from 1785 to 1827, kept the diaries for 1815, 1823 and 1824. He was born in Halifax on July 31, 1763; married Sarah Dering Thomas, eldest daughter of Nathaniel Thomas, a member of the Council of Massachusetts Bay, on November 30, 1800; and died on May 22, 1841. One of his daughters died at the age of two; the other—Elizabeth Gould—became the wife of Rev. Robert Fitzgerald Uniacke on July 21, 1830. James Boutineau Francklin's journal for the years 1825-32, inclusive, is printed in Bulletin No. 11 of the Public Archives of Nova Scotia.

James Foreman, of Halifax, merchant and Custos Rotulorum, kept the journal for 1816. He was born at Coldstream, Berwick-upon-Tweed, on December 21, 1763. For some time he was an employee of Brook Watson in London, England. In 1789 he migrated to Halifax, Nova Scotia, where he set up in business in a store on the Long Wharf, which was later known as Copeland's Wharf, and soon joined with George Grassie to form the great importing firm of Foreman, Grassie and Company, wine merchants. He retired from business in 1820, and for the remainder of his long life devoted considerable time to reading and study. For many years he was a member of the North British Society of Halifax. He held a number of offices in this society, including the Presidency on three occasions. Commissioned as Custos Rotulorum for Halifax County on September 4, 1828, he retained that office until early in 1835, when he resigned from it and was succeeded in it by W. G. Sawers on March 2, 1835. He died in Halifax on October 25, 1854, at the age of 90.

The chronicle kept by Rev. Mr. Wiswall of Wilmot for 1808 and 1809 is mainly a record of the weather. Covering virtually the whole of the year, it is a fairly complete account of days pleasant or unpleasant, winds light or high, heat and cold, rain and snow, frost and freshet. It also deals with seed-time and harvest, as well as with the appearance of birds and flowers, and mosquitoes and black flies. Life in the community gets a share of attention, with mention of church services, visitors to the parsonage, funerals, and militia musters. Notice is taken of troops passing through Wilmot en route from Annapolis to Halifax, of the arrival of newspapers from St. John or Halifax, and of such matters of international significance as trade embargoes and non-intercourse acts.

While a clergyman in an Annapolis County community is mainly concerned with atmospheric conditions and with activities centring round church and parsonage, three Haligonians place most emphasis on happenings of a different sort in the provincial capital, which was also a garrison town, a naval base and a centre for trade.

One Halifax merchant, in his journal for 1807, 1810-11 and 1813, devotes a great deal of attention to shipping and trade, to ships of the Royal navy and to privateers, and to the arrival and departure of mail packets. His diary discloses how one Halifax firm had trading connections with Scotland and England, and with Pictou and Miramichi. It also reveals the variety to be found in the home ports of ships entering Halifax harbour and in the destinations of those leaving it. This chronicler mentions the coming and going of military forces; reports the importation, under neutral colours, of provisions from the United States during the War of 1812; and describes the arrival on June 6, 1813, of H.M.S. Shannon with her prize, the U.S. Chesapeake. He takes notice of naval convoys in time of war, of a comet which was seen in the North-west all the month of September 1811, and of the arrival and departure of Lieutenant-Governors. A grim reminder of hardship at sea is recorded on March 16, 1813, with the story of the rescue from a sinking ship of six men, "who had been obliged by famine to kill the Capt & 5 of their shipmates for subsistance."

In view of the age, the dignity and the charm of Province House, it is interesting to note that this diarist refers, on August 13, 1811, to the laying of its corner-stone, in these words: "The corner stone of the Provincial Building was laid yesterday by His Excellency Sir Geo: Prevost."

Additional evidence of the diversity of topics in this journal is seen in such matters as "The Glorious News" of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow, passengers in incoming and outgoing ships, skating on the mill pond, the putting up and taking down of the shop-stove, and the big gale of November 12, 1813, at Halifax, with the damage, destruction and loss of life it caused.

For 1815, 1823 and 1824, Francklin makes entries on a variety of subjects, such as shipping, the meeting and proroguing of the Assembly, of which he was the Clerk, the movement of Lieutenant-Governors, the planting of vegetables, the appearance of salmon in the market and the migration of wild geese. He also records news of peace, of Napoleon Bonaparte and of the Battle of Waterloo, as well as local marriages and deaths, a New Brunswick fire of 1824, and the comings and goings of Dr. Alexander Croke, W. H. O., father of Thomas Chandler Haliburton, Dr. Inglis, and others of his own circle.

In his diary for 1816, Foreman deals not only with shipping and mail packets, but also with marriages and deaths of friends and acquaintances or persons of note, with civic or society dinners and with the Sydney-Halifax "Indian express." He records the exportation of ice to Jamaica, the importation of wine from Jersey, other incoming or outgoing cargoes, and a number of additional matters. On July 26, he mentions the arrival of Thomas Chandler Haliburton and his bride from England.

These four Nova Scotians, whose diaries for the years 1807-11, 1813, 1815-16 and 1823-24 are now in print, afford vivid glimpses of the varied life in capital and country during those years.
