Dear Ms. Mauger:

Thank you for your letter of September 29, 1987 wherein you enclosed letters written by the pupils of your language class for distribution to Donald Marshall, Jr. I have given the students' letters, and a copy of your letter, to Mr. Clayton Ruby, Q.C., solicitor for Donald Marshall, Jr., and he has undertaken to deliver same to his client.

The letters written by your students were most impressive and I commend them for their interest.

With kind regards.

Yours sincerely,

Chairman

Donald Marshall Inquiry
St. Andrew's Church Hall
Sydney, Nova Scotia

Dear Sir:

I teach a Language class here in Port Aux Basques and one of our goals is to increase communication skills. One of the ways of doing this is to study current events from the news.

The Donald Marshall Inquiry has really captured the interest of the students, and as a result many of them have written to Donald Marshall.

Could you arrange for him to get these letters? They are entirely unedited and "straight from the heart" so to speak.

What Mr. Marshall chooses to do with them is entirely up to him. I hope he will receive a bit of encouragement from them. If he chooses to respond to them in any way, I'm sure the students would be delighted. If not, they will be pleased to know just that he received them.

I thank you for your cooperation and assistance.

Yours truly,

Eleanor Mauger
